YPOW members organize major events of their own, including a health fair ...

Young Professionals of Worthington (YPOW) is an emerging network of individuals, ages 21 to 39, representing a wide variety of professions and occupations in the Worthington and Far North Columbus, Ohio, area.

YPOW was organized by the Worthington Area Chamber of Commerce, one of the largest suburban chambers in Ohio, which works to make meaningful and productive connections for businesses to help them grow and prosper. YPOW was developed to grow emerging leaders to serve our community's future.

Among the group's activities are networking and social events, philanthropic and charitable activities, and professional and leadership development opportunities.

YPOW members are young professionals interested in and dedicated to advancing their professional careers and the quality of their community. They also share a concern for maintaining the reputation of the Chamber and its partnerships within the community.

Participants in YPOW gain business and social connections by networking with other young professionals and other Chamber members; gain professional development by interaction with community and business leaders, legislators and others; learn about important issues in our community; and have an opportunity to make a difference through involvement in service projects.

YPOW is led by a Leadership Team of 10 YPOW members appointed by the board of trustees of the Worthington Area Chamber of Commerce. For more information, contact the Chamber office at (614) 888-3040.
